OPPOSITION TO NON-CASH BONUS DIES

Predicted Gratuity Bill Will Meet Little Trouble in Congress

TAX WILL BE SMALL

Interest Rates and Rediscounting Must Be Provided for

WASHINGTON, March 3—Bonus leaders in the house predicted today that the non-cash gratuity will go through congress with a comparatively little trouble.

The sub-committee engaged in re-drafting legislation to eliminate all cash bonus except for men whose compensation is $50 or less estimated that within two weeks the bill will be ready, although experience has shown that there is many a slip between prediction and enactment.

Since the insurance certificate proposal involves no wrenching of the treasury within the next three years, there will be no particular objection to it among the majority of representatives and senators. President Harding is agreeable to the proposal.

The plan will involve taxation of some kind or another but that taxation will be spread in homeopathic doses over a period of twenty years. Thus far, it is impossible to estimate the total cost of this new measure, though it is assured that it will run under $5,000,000,000 in the complete period. The bonus group was meeting again today, shaping up its measure further. Considerable detail work must be done. For instance, rates of interest on loans made soldiers upon their certificates must be fixed and provisions must be written as to re-discounting the paper.

Especial care will be taken to shield soldiers from loan sharks and only reputable banking establishments will be permitted to engage in loaning on the certificates—then only under well defined conditions. Under the present plan which cash bonus may be paid to men serving 110 days would be $50, because the $60 grant given all men upon discharge is to be deducted.

RECOGNIZES HIS PARENTS

Convicted Chicago Slayer Tries to Speak But Is Unable

CHICAGO, March 3.—Harvey Church, who hanks at 4 p. m. today was unable to say farewell to his father and mother who visited him in his cell at noon.

As the physicians examined Church they believed he murmured "mother" and "father" but they were not certain.

"Church made sounds, but they were not intelligible," said D. F. Bartel, his attorney.

"We thought he might be asking for his parents and sent for them."

Mr. and Mrs. Church, accompanied by their daughter, arrived at the jail within a few minutes. Before being taken to the cell they were informed that there was no further hope of saving Church's life.

"We have played our last legal card," Attorney Bartel told them. "We haven't another chance."

The aged parents, resigned to the fate which their son must meet, bore up bravely, as they were escorted to the cell.

The prisoner seemed to brighten up when his parents entered. He tried to talk but could not.

"Some of him lives, but most of him is already dead," Bartel said.

Intelligence Wasted on Futile Doctrine Says Henry James

Although progress towards peace among the nations of the world has been brought about through the disarmament conference, according to James W. Foley in "The Listening Post" tonight, he asserts that the fighting spirit must be kept up.

That there are problems to solve, bugs to spray and parasites to kill and that it will take plenty of fighting to do this and to combat disease and greed, he says is quite evident. Battles again the enemies of mankind must be fought. There will be struggle against injustice, intolerance and bigotry and the fight will not be carried on with guns and swords but with fine and high spirits.

Henry James in his comments on the news of the day speaks of the pity that an intelligent man should use his ability to spread broadcast anything so useless and futile as the doctrine that millions of people now on this earth will never die.

Dr. Frank Crane says that France needs to put on a drive for better health and sanitation as statistics show that it was not war alone that depopulated France.

3-LIGHT STANDARD URGED FOR SAN FERNANDO

Boulevard Ass'n. After Investigation Favor Lighting System

About 40 men and women residents of the southern section of Glendale came out for the business and social session of the San Fernando Boulevard association held at 810 San Fernando road, with President William Griffin acting as chairman, and Lloyd Wilson as secretary.

As chairman of the street lighting committee, A. M. Salyer reported that he had visited Alhambra, Riverside and a number of other cities to discover the best design for lighting standards, and in his opinion a three-light standard is the most desirable. He said he preferred it to a five-light standard and did not think a one-light standard would answer the purpose sought at all. The report was accepted and the association voted unanimously to recommend to the city council a 3-light standard.

Roy Johnson, chairman of the street improvement committee, reported that he had taken up with the city council the matter of having San Fernando boulevard at the intersection with Park avenue, repaired, and the council had ordered work done which would meet temporary needs until a culvert could be put in.

Acting on a recommendation that a committee be appointed to work with other civic bodies in an effort to secure a bridge to connect Glendale with Griffith Park, a committee was appointed consisting of Mrs. Moberly, A. M. Salyer and H. V. Johnson to co-operate with the chamber of commerce and various improvement associations.

Assistant Secretary Sanders of the chamber of commerce made an interesting talk on cooperation among organizations and endeavored to show the work that is being done by the chamber of commerce which is building, not for the present alone, but for the future.

The balance of the evening was given to sociability while coffee and doughnuts, candy and nuts were served.

BODY OF WOMAN IS FOUND AT VENICE

VENICE, Calif., March 3.—The body of a well dressed elderly woman was washed ashore on the beach here today.

The woman was apparently wealthy. Police believe she may have been the victim of foul play.

A wedding ring engraved "M. J. M. to M. E. M." was the only mrak of identification found on the body.

Succeeds Kenyon as Senator From Iowa

Charles A. Rawson, of Des Moines, has been appointed by Gov. N. E. Kendall, to succeed William S. Kenyon as U. S. Senator from Iowa. Senator Kenyon, who was head of the agricultural bloc in Congress, resigned to become a federal judge. Mr. Rawson, was born in Des Moines in 1867, is engaged in the manufacture of bricks and tilings, with many financial side lines. He was named chairman of the Iowa Republican State Central Committee in 1912 and has served constantly since. The new Senator, it is understood, will serve only until a successor is elected at the general election in November.

BUS LINE ACTION MUST COME QUICKLY

Must Follow Application Within Thirty Days of Filing Date

Action on Glendale's application to operate a municipally-owned bus line operating between this city and Los Angeles will be taken within a very few days by the board of public utilities of Los Angeles was the intimation of that board after the hearing yesterday on this city's application for the permit.

The board announced they would take the matter under advisement.

City Attorney Woodard stated that action would have to be taken on the application within 30 days after the application has been filed. He stated that this limit has almost been reached as the formal application was filed several weeks ago and there are only a few days left for the board to act.

Unofficially it was stated that the majority of the public utilities board appeared to favor the granting of the permit.

Mr. Leeds, a member of the board, stated that as far as he was concerned he was willing to vote to grant the permit if the city of Glendale would change its Los Angeles terminal of the line to remove it from the congested traffic district of that city. City Manager W. H. Reeves, speaking for the city administration of Glendale said that this city was willing to do this.

The intimation that Glendale might not be able to pay the bond issue required to finance the line was made by Mr. Kennedy, another member of the board.

Councilman S. A. Davis of Glendale replied to this insinuation by stating that Glendale could and would pay any bond issue that the people voted. He also intimated in his reply that the insinuations of Mr. Kennedy were unjust and uncalled for.

Henry Z. Osborn Jr., engineer of the board of public utilities, inquired if the Glendale delegation

TAYLOR MYSTERY AT A STANDSTILL

LOS ANGELES, March 3.—With every available clue exhausted, police headquarters and the sheriff's office working on the William D. Taylor murder mystery, admitted they were at a standstill today.

Failure to obtain any corroborative evidence from persons questioned about the remarkable story of Mrs. John Rupp, alias May Lynch, in which she accused two men held at Central station as the slayers, led Detective Sergeant Herman Cline, in charge of this phase of the murder case, to dismiss her account as largely fictitious. Inability to find any proof of another theory adduced by Deputy Sheriff Harvey Bell that Taylor was slain by a prominent society man in a quarrel over a woman, leaves this line of investigation where it was in the beginning.

In Union Is Strength For Twin Valley Cities

By JOHN H. GERRIE
Prosperity Editor Glendale Daily Press

Two charming cities share a lovely valley. Their outlook is upon the same majestic mountains, they are bathed in the same warm sunshine and cooled by the same mountain breezes. Their aspirations, needs and problems are identical and their people are of one kind, one-hundred-per-cent American, home loving and justly proud of their respective communities.

John H. Gerrie

As these cities grew they spread toward each other in loving contact. There was no commanding mark, such as a river or an intervening hill, to indicate where one left off and the other began. They just naturally dove-tailed into each other, forming, to all intents and purposes, a single happy, progressive and prosperous community of souls.

All signs would indicate that this was as nature, in abounding wisdom, had intended. The floor of the valley seemed to have been especially designed as the stage of a bustling, energetic city, with the foothills offering preferred scenic positions for the homes of those who toiled on the lower levels. The cyclorama of hills and mountains ostensibly shut off the encroachment of outside communities, though affording ample avenues of approach. Destiny almost shrieked out that this bowl in the grandeur of the earth's surface was provided for a single people in a single community of content.

But destiny has been defied—

Two separate cities have grown up where one was intended.

They are neighborly and friendly, it is true. They have mutual respect and admiration for each other that is shown in their daily intercourse. They are always ready to co-operate in matters affecting the interests of the twin towns. Their friendship and wisdom has been demonstrated in sharing together a high school that is a credit to both.

But they are two separate and distinct entities, each carrying the cost of its own city government and bearing the burdens and expenses and annoyances of all the various departments of community control. And each is handicapped in expansion by the imaginary line that divides the valley and confines ambitious effort to restricted limits.

These twin cities of course you know:

GLENDALE!
EAGLE ROCK!

They are beautiful cities, of exactly the same kind, priding themselves upon their attractive homes, shaded avenues, well paved streets, equable climate and scenic views. Glendale with a population estimated today at approximately 30,000 residents has startled the world with her rapidity of growth. Eagle Rock, getting away to a slower start, is following the pace of her bigger sister by an estimated increase of 50 per cent in 1921 and a present-day population of nearly 5000.

Each is building toward the other, the newest Glendale sub-divisions now stopping at the Eagle Rock line. Though most of the pupils of the Union High School are from Glendale homes a new school site has been purchased almost at the Eagle Rock line. The natural inclination on each side seems to be to bring the two cities into closer association.

Under these circumstances a political union of the two would appear to be the part of common sense. In such a merger neither would be a loser and both would be gainers. Glendale would gain needed territory for expansion, would add to her population and increase her fame as a marvel of beauty and development.

Eagle Rock would gain by becoming an important part of the fastest growing city, by shifting the burden and expense of community management to the greater city, by cheaper water supply, by less expensive light supply and by economy in other directions that would result from doubling up resources and cutting down "overhead."

This annexation idea is not a new one by any means. It has been discussed informally in both cities intermittently. The wisdom of it has been apparent to all, the certain trend toward it has been apparent to everybody, but it never has come to a definite plan or proposal, for several reasons. Chief of these has been a feeling of pride in each city and a faint fear on one side that identity would be lost and on the other that more would be given than received.

But recently as one city has watched the other grow and as leaders of the two have gotten together to discuss mutual interests, the pride of town has enlarged to pride of valley and a more receptive feeling has come into evidence on both sides on the subject of amalgamation of communities, of plans and of ambitions.

From conversations with leaders in both cities it is easily apparent that the conviction is growing that Glendale and Eagle Rock as a single, aspiring city will move faster and at less cost and achieve far more than either could accomplish singly in foolish competition with the other.

IN UNION IS STRENGTH!

TRAILING GANG OF BOOZE STEALERS

MENLO PARK, Calif., March 3.—Private and county detectives today were trailing the nine men who Wednesday night robbed the home of Julian Hart, San Francisco silk importer.

A check of the losses sustained by Hart shows that the robbers carried away 10v cases of liquor which belonged largely to Frederick W. McNear and in addition drank nearly a dozen bottles of fine wine. Members of the Hart family and several guests were bound, robbed of jewels and forced to watch proceedings.

Officers believe they know the identity of some of the members of the bandit gang and said they believed arrests would be made in San Francisco today.

SOVIETS MAY WIN JAP RECOGNITION

TOKIO, March 3.—Japan is disposed to recognize the soviet government of Russia under certain conditions, the United Press learned today from an authoritative source.

Instructions to the Japanese delegates at the proposed Genoa economic conference are now being prepared but have not been completed, the United Press was told. The informant declared that Japan probably will present two leading requirements, namely:

That the soviets assume the debts of the old government; that the soviet regime guarantee the safety of foreign property and lives in Russia.

If these requirements are accepted, it was stated, and are fulfilled Japan will be disposed to recognize the soviet government.

OPEN FORUM IS CHANGED INTO ROUND TABLE

Questions on Better Glendale Discussed Thursday Afternoon Club

Although the chief speaker who was to have addressed the open forum of the Thursday Afternoon club at the branch library Wednesday afternoon was unable to be present on account of illness, a most interesting session was held, notwithstanding.

Mrs. A. J. Becker, vice-president, acted as chairman, in the absence of Mrs. E. V. Bacon, the president, who is ill, and Mr. Arbury was introduced. He gave a talk on the community service proposition in which he is trying to interest Glendale, especially with regard to organized amusement.

Dr. Jessie Russell, who had charge of the forum program, resolved the meeting into a round table, distributing to members gathered around the board a variery of questions for discussion. These included:

"What is the greatest recreational need of Glendale at the present time?" "What has been our greatest mistake in civic development of Glendale?" "What changes would you suggest in the approaches to Glendale?" "What would you suggest as the greatest thing for the Glendale schools?" "What is the greatest project we could immediately begin working for?"

The discussion of these questions brought out considerable information on the condition of the Ivanhoe bridge and the danger of auto collisions there; also the lack of proper safeguards at electric railroad crossings. The need for additional bridges across the Los Angeles river as an outlet for Glendale traffic was also voiced.

Among those speaking were Mesdames Doggett, Wesley, Server, James H. Cunningham, W. B. Storer, Mary Ayers and A. J. Becker.

All the members entered into the discussion with enthusiasm and recommendations in regard to approaches, the Pacific Electric bridge, relief for the crowded condition of schools, and recreational needs were referred to Dr. Russell to be presented by her to the civics committee of the chamber of commerce for consideration, investigation and action.

SANITARIUM SITE STILL UNDECIDED

The council was unable to decide last night as to the granting of a permit for the locating of a sanitarium in Sycamore canyon.

Mr. Pierce, attorney for the company desiring the permit, and also a number of the protestants were on hand to present their case and so convincing were the arguments on both sides that the council decided to neither grant or deny this permit until it had, as a body, visited the proposed site and threshed the matter out for themselves.

The council will, after visiting the site, render its decision without anything furtner in the nature of a hearing.

FEAR STEAMER LOST

HALIFAX, N. S., March 3.—The Norwegian steamer Crontoft is feared to have foundered with all hands, according to a wireless message to the Cape Race station at 11:30 a. m. today from the steamer Estonia, which arrived at the position indicated by the sinking vessel yesterday. No signs of the Crontoft or her crew were found by the Estonia.

LITTLE GIRL WITH BROKEN NECK AND ALIVE

Baby Stratford Falls from Couch to Floor and Fractures Vertebrae

Notwithstanding the fact that she suffered a broken neck and a broken collar bone, little Barbara Jean Stratford is still alive and is on the road to recovery. Miss Barbara is the 14-months-old baby of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Stratford of 1019 Virginia place. The accident occurred while the little tot was playing in her home, the fall that caused all the trouble being from the davenport to the floor, a distance of about 15 inches.

Immediately after the accident, Dr. Eckles was called and set the collar bone, it being not known at the time that the neck of the little one was hurt, as nothing in the way of paralysis resulted from the fall. But as the child continued to complain of a pain in her neck it was decided to take an X-ray of that region of the child's body to see if any other trouble could be located. The X-ray showed that the seventh vertebrae of the child's spine was cracked. A plaster cast was immediately placed on the child and at latest reports the little sufferer was resting as easily as could be expected.

Dr. Eckles stated this morning that there are very few cases where the neck has been broken when complete or partial paralysis has not resulted, and that this is one of the most remarkable cases of the kind that has ever come under his observation. It is expected that the little tot will have to wear the cast for at least six weeks.

GOVERNOR AND OIL OPERATOR IN FIGHT

OKMULGEE, Okla., March 3.—A fist fight between Governor J. B. A. Robertson and James G. Lyons, Okmulgee oil operator, occurred in the courthouse here today after a conference between Governor Robertson and County Attorney James Hepburn, during which the governor asked that he be permitted to testfiy before the district court grand jury probing state bank failures.

A half dozen blows were struck. Spectators separated them.

ILLINOIS MINERS THREATEN BOLT

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 3.—Illinois union mine leaders threatened today to bolt from the solid ranks of the United Mine Workers and make separate peace with state operators.

Frank H. Farrington, president of the Illinois miners, predicted as union officials gathered here that his organization would throw the April 1 strike plans overboard and accept the invitation of Illinois operators for a parley.

MAN ENTERS CHURCH AND SHOOTS GIRL

Young Singer Shot While Standing With Choir Members

THOUGHT IT JOKE

Victim Had Been Resident of Los Angeles Until Year Ago

PORTLAND, Ore., March 3.—Elmer W. Weatherford had been arrested this morning and is held in the city jail as the result of the shooting in St. Stephen's Pro-Cathedral last night of Miss Willamene Fuller, pretty 17-year-old school girl.

Miss Fuller was shot through the breast, the bullet lodging against a rib. She was reported this morning to be resting easily and to have a chance for recovery.

Miss Fuller, who came here with her mother a year ago from Los Angeles, where she was well-known, was standing in the front row of the St. Stephens choir shortly before 9 o'clock last night, practicing the hymns for the Sunday service. Suddenly the form of a man, masked with a white handkerchief, appeared from the rear shadows of the church.

"Throw up your hands," he called.

Members of the choir, thinking the demand a joke, merely laughed, the women faced the masked man, the position of the male members being so arranged that their backs were toward the intruder.

"This is no joke," the masked man snarled, and with the last word fired the shot which crumpled Miss Fuller to the chancel floor. The man then turned and fled.

No motive other than attempted robbery has been attached to the crime. Mrs. May Fuller, the girl's mother, who was singing near her daughter when the shot struck the latter to the floor, could voice no reason why the attack upon her daughter should have been personal.

OFFERS LAND FOR MONTEREY ROAD

Short Cut from Louise to Brand Proferred With Provision

The people living in the region of the wash in the northern part of the city are indignant over the fact that a portion of Monterey road, which they have been using to cut across from Louise street to Brand boulevard, has been closed by a barb wire fence. A representative of those living in this northern locality appeared before the city council last night and asked for a "little light on the subject."

Before the members of the council could answer his questions, Cameron Thom, owner of the property on which the fence has been placed, rose and gave a satisfactory solution to the problem.

"That strip of ground running along the wash and known as Monterey road has never been an open road, although we have permitted it to be used as a short-cut from Louise to Brand. So far as having this road opened is concerned, we are willing to give a strip of land for this street from Louise street to Glendale avenue, a distance of something like five blocks, providing the people owning the land from Louise street to Brand boulevard will give a strip of land through their property. This these property owners have refused to do up to the present time. If the city can get these property owners to give their portion of ground, which in all is only about a block in length, this street can be cut through at once."

I am particularly appreciative of the very full and complete data regarding municipal affairs that appeared in your Anniversary number. The facts as published by you leave no doubt in the minds of all who read that the Glendale municipal administration is working hand in hand with the citizens and taxpayers for a bigger and better city.

On behalf of the entire city administration allow me to congratulate the management of the Glendale Daily Press for the edition and to express the hope that the people of Glendale cooperate with you to the extent of sending copies of this paper to their friends and relatives in the east.

BUCKETSHOPPERS FLEEING WRATH OF LAW

New York Brokers Are Heading for Safety in Europe

NEW YORK, March 3.—Bucketshop brokers are fleeing by the score before the storm of the district attorney's investigation, it developed today.

Detectives searching the financial district for men wanted on grand jury indictments have found only empty offices in most instances. Of nearly fifty indictments to date, only six arrests have been made.

Defaulting brokers, brokers indicted for grand larceny, brokers whose bucketshops have been protested and brokers who have reason to believe they may be protested—all have folded up their gold stock certificates and stolen away in the night.

Nearly 100 detectives have been sent into Wall street to bring back brokers wanted for trial in connection with the sweeping bucketshop investigations. They have found empty offices, with perhaps only a janitor or an unpaid office boy, or maybe a ticker still taping the market's fluctuations.

The fleeing brokers have gone, for the most part, to Europe.

Bail has been fixed at $50,000 in a majority of cases where the bucketeers have been apprehended. A little trip abroad is cheaper than the premium on such bail.

NEW PROHIBITION AGENT

LOS ANGELES, March 3.—Special Agent F. A. Hazeltine was today in charge of prohibition enforcement work in Southern California, succeeding Robert Avery, who resigned in a wire to Washington last night. Avery sharply criticised conditions in the Los Angeles office when he resiged.

GLENDALE P. E. O. IS ENTERTAINED BY BURBANK

Appreciation of Kindness Shown in Aiding at State Convention

Burbank and Glendale members of the P. E. O. met in a delightful affair Monday when the Burbank chapter entertained chapters B. A. and A. H. of Glendale at luncheon, served in the Commercial club rooms. These chapters assisted the local one a year ago in entertaining the state convention, and the members of the order in this city wished to show their appreciation of the kindness extended by the neighbors.

Besides the Glendale members of the organization there were present at the affair, Mrs. Lola P. Bennett of Orange, state president; Mrs. La Belle Townsend of Los Angeles, state treasurer, and Mrs. Ollie P. Cramer of Los Angeles, state organizer.

It was a matter of great regret that there was not present Mrs. Mary Allen Stafford, one of the three remaining founders of the organization, and Mrs. Faith Story, both of whom were detained by illness. As guests there were also present Mrs. Kirkman of Santa Barbara and Mrs. Jackson of Neosho, Missouri.

Following the excellent luncheon a business session was held, followed by short addresses by the state officers and the presidents of each chapter. When these were concluded an entertaining program was given which included fancy dancing by Cecelia May Fischer, and a violin solo by Miss Helen Bennett. The meeting was most pleasantly presided over by Mrs. C. M. Knox, president of the local chapter.

had deliberated on the matter of operating such a line and inquired as to whether they thought that it was fair to the Pacific Electric to grant this permit for the city of Glendale to compete with that corporation in the transportation business.

Mr. Reeves answered him by stating that the people of Glendale had deliberated on the matter and had reached the opinion that if the corporation in question could not stand competition it would be a matter of the survival of the fittest. He stated that the Pacific Electric as a corporation was admitting the failure of electric lines in handling traffic conditions and were gradually installing bus lines of their own. He said the Glendale line of the company was only one instance.

C. D. Gulick, transportation manager for the city of Glendale explained to the board just how this city proposes to operate the line and described the type of bus that would be used and the service that would be given.

Speaking for the people of Glendale, Charles B. Guthrie, one of Glendale's leading realty dealers said that he believed that a bus line was the only solution for the traffic tangle.

Frank Carr, for the Pacific Electric attached the statements of Mr. Guthrie by referring to the exploitation of the people by subdividers.

In the discussion that followed the remark of Mr. Carr regarding the alleged exploitation of the people by subdividers it was intimated that this exploitation, if there is any, cannot compare to the alleged exploitation of the people by traffic corporations.

At the conclusion of the hearing the board of public utilities asked to postpone making a decision. Mr. Carr of the Pacific Electric said that it would be unfair for any action to be taken until after the Hollywood rate hearing later in the month.

The Glendale delegation answered this by saying that the Hollywood hearing has no bearing on the application of this city for a permit to operate a bus line and demanded that action on the permit be taken at once. The board stated that the matter would be taken under advisement at once and a decision given as soon as possible.

Charles Guthrie, Mr. Snyder, Dr. Jessie Guthrie, Mayor Spencer Robinson, Councilman S. A. Davis and City Manager Reeves were among the Glendale speakers who presented facts bearing on the questions involved in the hearing.

Present from Glendale besides those mentioned were H. V. Hollister, president of the chamber of commerce; Secretary James M. Rhoades of the chamber, and Peter L. Ferry, chairman of the special chamber bus line committee, Assistant Secretary Sanders, Councilman C. E. Kimlin, Lloyd Wilson, secretary of the San Fernando Boulevard association, Mrs. Mabel Tight. C. H. King and others.

CHURCHES GROWING UP WITH BURBANK

With all the various organizations in Burbank and the city itself steadily growing, the churches are not being left behind in their increased membership list. Those who have recently affiliated themselves wit hthe Methodist church are Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Isabel of 706 Verdugo avenue. Mr. Isabel is the manager of the new lumber yard at Tujunga avenue and San Fernando boulevard. Professor and Mrs. P. R. Burnett and sons Carl and Kenneth of Ninth and Cypress avenue; Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Skeen. Mr. Skeen is an insurance agent and Mrs. Skeen is in charge of the millinery department in Young's drug goods store.

SUGGEST ASKING EAGLE ROCK TO COME IN

Proposed to Chamber That Invitation Be Extended to Neighbor

The plan was suggested at the forum meeting of the chamber of commerce last night by Mrs. M. L. Tight that Glendale extend to Eagle Rock a cordial invitation to annex to this city. She stated that the annexation would be of mutual benefit in that the two cities were so closely allied in school and other matters of importance. This suggestion was adopted and made part of the program of work for the chamber of commerce and Secretary James M. Rhoades during the year.

The second forum meeting of the year, held last night, was well attended, was snappy and imbued with the spirit of progress. President V. M. Hollister called the meeting to order and called Geo. B. Karr of the Baldwin Shirt Manufacturing company to preside.

The object of the meeting was stated as having been called to outline a program for the secretary and the chamber as an organization, to work on during the year. Suggestions from those present. Many suggestions were made and after discussing each, five main propositions were decided upon for the immediate work of the organization.

To give the city of Glendale wider publicity in outside territory, the advertising and publicity committee was authorized to issue a pictorial booklet and mailing leaflet, to be sent to outside towns. The secretary was also authorized to issue a monthly bulletin to the members of the chamber, telling of the work that has been accomplished. A suggestion was made that letter stickers be prepared for envelopes and that the people of Glendale be asked to attach them to letters sent to friends and relatives in the east. This was not made in the form of a motion and was discussed without any action being taken.

It was decided that the chamber should get behind the city administration and back that body's plans for a road building program during the year 1922. The chamber will assist in every possible way the improving of the streets of the city.

The suggestion was made that a public comfort station be built in the downtown business section of the city. It was pointed out that this was almost a necessity in a city of this size and the proposal to secure such a station was made a part of the year's program.

The transportation rates between this city and Los Angeles over the Pacific Electric line and the city's proposal to establish a municipal bus line between the two cities, was thoroughly discussed. A motion was passed instructing the directors to call a mass meeting in this city, if the public service commission of Los Angeles grants the city a permit to operate a bus line in Los Angeles. The mass meeting is to be called within ten days after the granting of the permit. At that time plans will be discussed for the voting of a bond issue to finance the project and the method of equipping and establishing the line.

Another suggestion made was that the chamber put on a "write a letter" week, during which time all citizens will be asked to write a letter to friends and relatives in the east telling of Glendale and the advantages this city offers to the newcomer.

Truths in Epigram

When bad men combine, the good must associate; else they will fall one by one, an unpitied sacrifice in a contemptible struggle.—Burke (1729-1797).

Idleness and pride tax with a heavier hand than kings and parliaments. If we can get rid of the former, we may easily bear the latter.—Franklin (1706-1790).

"MIRACLE MAN"

They have been trying over in Los Angeles a probably deluded and weak minded old man for manslaughter. He is one of a type that the public in many years of experience has become reasonably familiar with. He has been designated the "miracle man," and with most of the modern miracle men, the miracle has been how they could maintain life in such a state of uncleanliness and unkemptness and general disregard of the laws of health and hygiene. Another miraculous thing is how they could attract so large a number of those equally deluded, play upon their credulity and ignorance, and obtain money and support.

If the man is not deluded, then he is fanatical and mentally unbalanced; and if he is not one or the other, then he is dishonest and a swindler. There are three horns of a situation here, apparent to all reasonable people. The man may fall upon any one of them.

He might have gone for a long time with his miraculous performances, had he not foolishly attempted to straighten out limbs long crippled and stiff from illness and disease. Whether the attempted "interposition" resulted in the death of the patient was for the jury to say. But the fact remains that the patient is dead.

How long the press and the public will play up alleged "miracle men" is a question. When the one in question was at the height of his healing performances, he was good copy. Too good, we might say. Doubtless many weak-minded people were deluded and deceived by the public notice given him. The results in individual instances may or may not have been disastrous. In this one instance they seem to have been fatally disastrous to one person.

There is no law, perhaps, to prevent any person from believing any kind of foolery or quackery or knavery or chicanery he pleases. But the law of good citizenship and good sense and decency ought to prevent the setting forth of the antics and performances of a fanatic or faker with seriousness and that space that is sometimes given to honest and earnest endeavor—sometimes but not too often.

The press that touts the quack and knave because he chances to have long and dirty hair and the elements of a spectacular story is not without its share of responsibility for the results of the delusion of foolish people. "Miracle" men need to be exposed and driven out at the beginning, not press-agented and pictured and given endless columns of publicity. The press ought to unite to expose and disclose fraud and fanaticism and fakery. Sometimes it seems to be united to exploit it and give it color.

SERVICE

We regret to read that the advertising writers of the country believe the word "service," as a pushing force in advertising, has outlived its usefulness. It may be the advertising writers are wrong, but they are a pretty much alive and discerning class, and they know something of the pushing or pulling power of words.

The reason perhaps, if the thing is true, is that the word has become hackneyed. It has been used with too much freedom and too little meaning. There has been too little of real force behind it. It has come "trippingly from the tongue" or pen, perhaps, because for a time in the history of the world service was the thing to be rendered. The crisis in the world's affairs saw the need for it.

So everybody came to talk of "service" without too much meaning or sincerity. No address was complete but many references were made to it. There was no appeal to the spirit of people without bringing in the word many times. Until people came to grow too much accustomed to it. And when you grow too much accustomed to anything it does not mean so much.

Still, it is a good word. It means a lot. But it means only a lot when it is service of the spirit and of the soul and of the best selves of us, generously and spiritedly rendered. There is a lot of lip-service in the world, the pseudo-service of glib promise and ready speech. There is too much promise of service without performance.

It was a rather compelling force in the war, the word service. Much was done with its suggestion and appeal. If it has become hackneyed beyond further use, perhaps the advertisement writers are to some extent to blame. For they have made use of it a lot. And perhaps not always in the spirit in which the word should be used.

It will not go out of the hearts of all of us, we hope, even if it goes out of the advertisements. We hope it will not go out of the spirits of young men and women entering into life. They need to remember that the world needs and wants always service sincerely and honestly and spiritedly rendered. And the world will always pay well for that kind of service.

No life is full or complete without service. No happiness is possible without it. No establishment will survive that fails to render it. It is the purpose of life and the crown and garland that rests upon the brow of death and hallowed memory—service.

A ROYAL WEDDING

It is rather an interesting commentary upon human thinking and custom and habit and all that, that so much interest should be taken in, so many columns of newspaper space given over to, and so great a to-do made about the wedding of one couple of human beings in this world.

Weddings are countless, we might say. Every day sees them by thousands if not by millions. We do not say they are quite as numerous as births or deaths, but they come third in the list of the affairs of human beings surely.

And they have a very natural interest for the close friends and for the families of the persons whom the law and custom refers to as the "contracting" parties, which is a rather cold and stern way of putting it to be sure. Just as the birth of children has a special interest for the parents and the parents of the parents and the uncles and aunts. No so much perhaps for cousins. The cousinly relation is a kind of distant one anyway. Parents and uncles and aunts seem to have a reality of relationship, but the cousinly function is a kind of vague and shadowy one.

So births are interesting to those immediately concerned, except to the child that is born. Birth is of little interest there, nor will it be for a matter of some years. Because the child born knows nothing whatever about it and cares less. It is born through circumstances and because of laws over which it has had no control. If there were volition, perhaps some of the births would not occur. The child itself, looking forward to the future, might veto its own coming into the world.

But births just as births are not interesting outside of the immediate circles in which they take place, except to the makers of vital statistics and those having a broad interest in the survival of the race. And weddings are much the same, except where the press makes a great to-do and makes the public a kind of larger family, so to speak.

And this is what weddings of royalty are made. Royalty has a vast and natural interest for a non-royal populace. It is something set apart and different and far off and unreal and of another and a greater sphere. And the doings of royalty, even the littlest of them, are good copy, as the newspapers say. What royalty eats and wears and does and says is news, where what you and the rest of us eat and wear and say is not even of passing interest and not worth a newspaper line.

A wedding of royalty is, after all, just the mating and uniting of two human beings into a little family that may become a bigger one. But the world does not take it that way. It is something for the world to think over and read about and dream of and ponder at and stand agape before. A lot of the world needs a royalty to adore and revere and fight for and glory in. Royalty is the personification of government and country, and long years of custom and usage and habit of thought have made it almost necessary to the national life of a people.

It is interesting to observe that Princess Cantacuzene, grand daughter of President Grant, is in Washington. She heads a committee for relief of Russian exiles. The people she strives to help constituted the brains and respectability of Russia, and therefore were driven out, unless starved in the effort to get out.

A DYING NATION

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Unconsciously and usually we measure all questions by the span of our life. But in the case of nations they should be measured by centuries.

DR. FRANK CRANE

The most important question for a nation is not the present generation so much as the next and the next.

In other words, the success of a nation is determined by its fecundity.

The long war is to be fought by blood and stock and breed, not by dreadnaughts or money.

It is this fact that alarms France.

And these are the figures in the case:

In 1913 France had a population of 39,601,000. According to the census of 1921, she had only 36,084,000. The diminution, therefore, was 8.8 per cent. Even adding in the population gained in Alsace-Lorraine, the decrease is 5.5 per cent.

These figures are taken from a French newspaper, and not from hostile sources. It is the French themselves that are alarmed.

Over against this we know that from 1913 to 1921 the population of England increased 4.7 per cent; that of Prussia (the only part of new Germany that has been recently counted) increased 2.6 per cent; that of Switzerland 3.4 per cent; that of Sweden 8.7 per cent; that of the United States 14.9 per cent; and that of Japan 13.6 per cent.

In addition to this, the numerical equivalents between the sexes, ordinarily maintained by a mysterious law of nature, have been broken by the war, and France today has three million more women than men. The war has brought the masculine population of France down to what it was in 1868. In three years the country has lost more than ordinarily in a half century.

It is not only war that depopulates France.

Tuberculosis removes 100,000 people every year.

The drinking places attract workmen, as they are more inviting than his unhealthy home, where air and light are lacking.

Nature and destiny have their grim and silent arguments against alcohol.

One hundred thousand new-born infants die before they are one year old, of whom 25,000 perish because their mothers have to work too hard during pregnancy and are delivered prematurely; 30,000 others because the mothers were not able or willing to nourish them; and almost all the rest because their mothers were ignorant of the art of caring for children.

The momentum of civilization constantly tends to urbanize and industrialize the population. The result of which is to lower the standard of life.

One favorable aspect of the question, however, is that the young people are taking more interest in sports, are developing their physical forces and resistance.

What France needs is a vigorous campaign of hygiene and physical culture, and there are many Frenchmen who are preaching this. No amount of courage and brilliancy of spirit can compensate the inevitable law of physical vitality.

France means something to all the world. In a sense it is at the forefront of civilization. She should not only realize her position and put forth every effort to improve it, but she should receive in this endeavor the hearty co-operation of every other nation.

THE LISTENING POST

The disarmament congress and the four power treaty and the progress toward peace among the nations do not at all mean that you will disarm yourself.

Indeed not.

You may disarm yourself of some superfluities in the way of attack.

But you will still need the fighting spirit.

* * *

The moves toward peace do not mean that you will become pale and anaemic and bloodless.

That you will stop struggling.

That you will go forth into the world wholly without means of making your way.

Indeed not.

* * *

There will still be a lot of fighting to do in this world when the armies and navies are all scrapped and disbanded.

When all the swords are beaten into plowshares.

For the man who uses the plowshare has to do a lot of fighting.

* * *

He cannot lie in a hammock and let his fields grow him into affluence.

He has to be up at the dawn and be busy as a bee.

And struggle for what he gets.

* * *

The advent of peace in arms does not mean that we are to be carried about on pillows.

That we will be transported to "flowery beds of ease," as the old hymn used to say.

* * *

A flowery bed of ease may be a good place for a slug or a snail or a caterpillar or a worm.

But it is no place for people with spirit and fire and purpose.

* * *

Real people need thorny beds of struggle.

They need something to get them up in the morning.

They need problems to solve and battles to fight and bugs to spray and parasites to kill.

* * *

So there will be plenty of fighting to do after all the peace treaties are signed and sealed and delivered.

There will be plenty of individual struggle.

There will still be disease and ignorance and poverty and greed and a lot of things that have proven enemies to mankind as vicious as those of the battlefield.

* * *

There will still be the struggle of the man with himself.

The struggle between the best and the worst selves of him.

There will be the struggle against injustice.

Against intolerance.

Against littleness and uncharitableness and bigotry.

* * *

There will be the struggle against the unfit in nature.

The germ and aphis and the weevil and the moth and the grub and the pests that undo the work of men.

The same pests that we find in the kingdom of plant growth and in the kingdom of human growth.

* * *

Yes, there will still be plenty of fighting to do when we no longer march forth to the fields of battle.

Or sail forth to sink enemy ships.

But it will be a kind of fighting that is worth while.

Instead of killing people, there will be a fight to teach them how to live.

And why.

* * *

Keep up the fighting spirit.

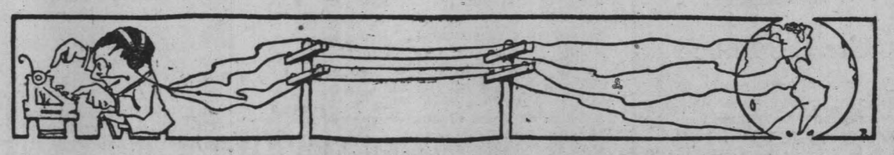
Don't believe that soon we will all lie down and drowse and drink nectar out of thin glasses and eat honey with long spoons.

There is a lot of fighting yet to do in the world.

Not with guns and swords and bayonets perhaps.

But with fine and high spirits.

JAMES W. FOLEY.



SONGS OF THE POETS

A Shadow Boat—By Arlo Bates (1850-1918)

Under my keel another boat
Sails as I sail, floats as I float;
Silent and dim and mystic still,
It steals through that weird nether-world,
Mocking my power, though at my will
The foam before its prow is curled,
Or calm it lies, with canvas furled.

Vainly I peer, and fain would see
What phantom in that boat may be.
Yet half I dread, lest I with ruth
Some ghost of my dead past divine,
Some gracious shape of my lost youth,
Whose deathless eyes once fixed on mine
Would draw me downward through the brine!

OBSERVED AT A GLANCE

Harvard scientists say they have discovered a new method of measuring the distance to a star, but the average citizen will not get much excited about it.

* * *

And there were perhaps a million other weddings in the also-ran class.

* * *

Those hissing sounds are the curses of the hermit of Amerongen directed toward his royal British cousins on this festive occasion.

* * *

When it comes to scrapping navies, however, we have to admit that the German scrapped theirs first.

* * *

* * *

With as many suckers in the world as Chicago and New York report in recent cases, we admit the temptation to knock off work, when money is so easily gotten elsewhere.

* * *

We don't know the Yap treaty will work, but there are a lot of Yappers in congress who ought to hazard a guess.

* * *

If Henry should buy the naval ships to be scrapped we might find the dissected parts of them tripping along the highways as Lizzies.

* * *

Judge Landis formerly sent offenders to prison. Now his duty will be to send them to the bench.

Judging from the prevalent hysteria of news reports and interviews and grilling and probings, all of the hop-heads seem to be busy.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

NOW UP TO THE SENATE

[Philadelphia Public Ledger]

Mr. Harding was well within the truth when he twice told the senators that if they failed to give their consent to the treaties it would be futile to try again to settle any vital international problem in conference. In saying this he confirms and voiced the opinion and judgment of every qualified and responsible person who attended closely and intelligently the recent exercises and proceedings at which was revealed "how common our human aspirations are and how easy it is when the task is properly approached to reconcile our national aspirations." If the senate attempts to ditch or impair these covenants for peace, the United States might as well go out of the conference business. Happily, the early present indications are that the senate will do no such thing. Mr. Harding confronts a different state of mind and a different atmosphere in that chamber than Mr. Wilson faced when he submitted the League of Nations covenant and the Paris treaty.

The President's appealing and wooing speech to the senate was shrewdly and, as appears at the moment, effectively designed to accentuate and to heighten the more favorable condition he finds. Mr. Harding's address was such a direct appeal to the senate, it showed so much concern for the chamber's viewpoint and prejudices, its manner of delivery was so considerate, friendly and in a sense almost beseeching, that its effect was visible. How long that effect will last the coming weeks will disclose. At the moment it may be said that a good case has been presented appealingly and fully. The record is clear and complete. It has the support of public opinion. Mr. Harding has been well served by his agents. The senate must now make its record.

ELECT DIRT FARMERS

[New York World]

The complaint of the middle west that there ought to be at least one dirt farmer on the federal reserve board would come more gracefully if the voters of the region had taken the trouble to pick out a few dirt farmers to represent them in the house and senate.

A dirt farmer who is not considered good enough at home to send to congress is hardly the best material for a federal reserve board.

A FOUR-VOLUME SCHOLAR

[Springfield Republican]

The leading scholar in politics today in America is Albert J. Beveridge, candidate for the senate in Indiana. Compared with his ponderous four-volume biography of John Marshall, all of the historical books written by Senator Lodge seem to have been written for children.

JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES

By DELLA STEWART

It's easier to rise to an emergency than it is to an alarm clock. It's easier to meet some great disaster than it is to keep sweet through the little every-day pin-pricks that life sends.

If we never acted on impulse, it may be there wouldn't be so many pin-pricks. Most of our lives are spent in dealing with consequences. We're not always choosing new environments, new relationships, new work. We're dealing with the consequences of our past choices—also those of others. And we have not always chosen wisely. So the pin-pricks and little perplexities multiply and we fall beneath them—or are overcome. Another choice we must make. How very complicated life is!

Oh, dear! Why couldn't it have been that life was set in deep groves for each one of us so that all we could do would be to run along, railroad train fashion, our path all planned out for us, and no great danger of collision with others' paths and others' lives? You say this; I say it. But so doing we run our heads against an immovable object—and we're far from being the proverbial irresistible force. Our lives were not planned that way, and that's all there is to that! We're up against actual existing circumstances—not against idle wishes.

There's a sort of fascination in realizing that each of us has almost unlimited possibilities. We don't have to keep to ugly, bare, railroad highways. We can slip into woodsy lanes and beside tree-shadowed waters. We are at least masters of our fates. And if our fates are sad, who's most to blame? Pin-pricks and perplexities are common property. The one who best meets them, he's the hero.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Not long ago a man delivered a lecture in which he proclaimed that millions of people now on this earth will never die. It is to be regretted that a man once of superior mentality should have permitted himself thus to be led astray. Doubtless this man is a student. He has specialized along a certain line until he has convinced himself that he is right. No appeal is made to him by the facts of everyday life. Emotions that should be stirred by the truth, as every man must face the truth, he is incapable of registering. His whole process of thought is due to a malformation of the mind, that once may have been brilliant.

HENRY JAMES

It is a pitiful spectacle. To see a man devoting the whole of his own intelligence, now a warped and wasted force, to the task of befooling and debauching the intelligence that still is free from the taint of disease, gives rise to a wonder that so many are ready to be deluded.

Crowds came to hear the hurtful and wholly silly prating of this cultivated speaker. An attempt was made to "broadcast" his remarks to such as were unable to come in.

What an anomoly! The ability to send a message over a wide area, bespeaks human genius. And this genius may be devoted to dissemination of false and pernicious doctrine, the hollow prating of a zealot.

* * *

The so-called Miracle Man, now in trouble over the failure of one of his attempted cures, is said to have declined the challenge to "charm a rattlesnake." The challenge came from a rival in the healing business. The refusal to participate in such a contest will be set down to the credit of Mr. Miracle Man.

No reason appears why anybody should be ambitious to charm a rattler. Even were it possible to do so, the snake could present to the beholder only a meager array of attractions.

Something concerning the real spirit of bolshevism may be discerned from the fact that Bill Haywood was present at a review of troops in Russia. In this country Haywood was a loafer and a criminal. He deserved hanging for a murder committed in Idaho many years ago. Ever after his escape, he seemed to hate the society that foolishly saved his neck. When finally caught for his crimes of disloyalty, he ran away to Russia, leaving his bondsmen to pay the piper.

Bill may enjoy an army review in Russia, but he never would try to inspect a police review in the United States.

* * *

When Russia's oligarchy has reached the last stage preceding the crash to destruction, Lenine and Trotzky may make the S. O. S. signal without evoking much response, save from Brisbane and Shaw. This faithful twain will protest, doubtless using ink made pallid by the addition of their falling tears.

Burbank has produced a blackberry with a thornless vine. This is a single one of his triumphs of peace. Efforts to correct the errors of nature could not be successful save through the efforts of genius.

Nature lovers study her laws with admiration and awe. But the lovingest in the lot could not vindicate the wisdom of nature in having created a delicious berry and equipped it with stingers.

Men are but children older grown, for sure. One male of full stature recently dropped a mouse down inside the shirt of another. Apparently the mouse was far from delighted, the man who had acquired the creature, gave no sign of gladness. But a wave of joy surcharged the person of the joker.

It is said that a Highland orange grower shipped frozen oranges to market, having done this after the fruit had been inspected, and the shipment forbidden.

No dealer is likely to get anything but trouble out of this sort of tactics. If he cares nothing for his own reputation, he is responsible in a measure for the reputation of the citrus industry.

Charles W. Morse has been indicted for conspiracy to defraud the government. Evidently the lesson he received from a former experience failed to sink in.

It was Morse who won his way out of the penitentiary by the pretense of fatal illness, when as a matter of fact he was robust, and jumped immediately into the thick of business. He fooled kindly President Taft. That game works only once, however.

When he was approached for a contribution to aid German war cripples, the ex-kaiser did not send any cash. However, he sent a photograph of himself.

The person who asks for bread and gets a stone knows about how the veterans must feel.

A Kentucky couple, married five years, are the parents of a dozen children. Eight came in sets of two, and the latest visitation consisted of four.

Doubtless there will be felt by some enthusiasts an impulse to send congratulations. Far better, however, to send some rubber-tipped bottles and a trunkful of the useful garments of infancy.

Children by the dozen in this hasty fashion are not to be reckoned a blessing. The suggestion of relationship with the lower animals is too acute.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

My young nephew came in today to whine. He is the world's superfine whiner. He can bleat in more tongues than a lost sheep. He feels that the world is against him, and that the fact that at twenty-four years of age he has not made his mark is a proof that the game has been organized against him. He thinks Fate is dealing from the bottom. His idea is that in the gamble with life the other fellow uses marked cards.

"You gimme," I said this morning, being provoked beyond all endurance, "you gimme—and the fact that you are the only son of my only sister isn't going to save you—you gimme the worst pain I have ever suffered in the course of a long and adventurous career. The one point in your favor is that you have been brought up under your mother's care. If you had been left out on a doorstep when you were a mere twelve-pounder I believe the stuff in you might have made a man."

That being one of my hallucinations, if you get me—that the mother handicaped starts the average well-reared boy at a disadvantage in his fight with Old Man World.

"Did you ever hear about Richard P. Momsen?" I asked him.

Certainly he never had. He has heard of very few things except the necessity of keeping his throat well wrapped up and never, never mixing with rude companions who have brains in their beans. But Momsen is now, today, this minute, the topnotch American lawyer in Rio Janeiro. He is that because he is the one foreigner who ever mastered the Portuguese language and the law that is embalmed in it. Other foreigners have learned enough Portuguese to be able to ask for soup and railroad ticket and even mildly to reprimand the chambermaid because she didn't change the sheets. But Momsen, alone of his race and age, has learned Portuguese thoroughly. More than that he has learned Portuguese and Brazilian law thoroughly. The Brazilians are as proud of him as his own transplanted countrymen are.

Momsen began without a sou. Without even a degenerate Indian head. He worked his way. He studied in night schools. He didn't have any one to push him. He didn't even push himself, not being of the odiously pushful sort. He just worked along and paid his bills and studied and became master of first one thing and then another. Now he is the——

You've heard what he is. And this weak-kneed nephew of mine is moaning around about an age that doesn't give a young man a chance. Honest to salt mackerel, he makes me physically ill!

SCOUT CHARTER IS EXPECTED SOON

Executive Board Called to Open Forum Meeting Monday Night

Harold Benner, scout executive, announces that the boy scout council expects very soon to receive its annual charter and then it will make several interesting announcements.

In most communities each troop is represented on the council.

At the present time the scout council has jurisdiction over four troops, three in Glendale and one in Eagle Rock.

No. 1 is the oudest, and is known as "Tropico troop," first to be organized in the state of California. Robert Taylor is its scoutmaster, and it is being reorganized. It numbers about 15 and is preparing to take in young boys to fill up its roster.

Troop No. 2, composed of Eagle scouts under Scout Master Benjamin Robison, is full up and is the envied of all troops because of its clubhouse cabin in Verdugo Woodlands.

Troop No. 3 under Scout Master Frank C. Ayars has a few vacancies.

Troop No. 4 is full with a long waiting list and it is expected a new troop will be organized in Eagle Rock

One of the problems which the council will soon be called upon to consider is the location of a summer camp. The budget provides $500 for the purpose and a committee of which Charles H. Kline is chairman, is working on the matter.

For week-end camps the council has been invited to make use of Burbank's fine scout camp in the foothills.

GLENDALE MUSIC ALTERATION SALE

The Glendale Music company of 109 North Brand is putting on an alteration sale this week which will attract buyers from all over this section of the country. This popular music company seldom puts on a sale, but when it does the public can depend upon getting real values.

On account of their growing business they have found it necessary to make more room for the display of their stock, and a force of carpenters is busy this week making alterations. Two large display windows thirteen feet square will be put in, and hardwood floors throughout the building will also be laid, besides other improvements that will add to the efficiency of the Glendale Music company, which is the original and oldest music concern in Glendale. Salmacia Bros. believe in handling good stock, and giving the public a square deal, and to this end will make price reductions which will startle buyers. The business of Salmacia Bros., owners of two stores in Glendale, has grown rapidly during the time they have been in business and they expect it to increase right along, as they will carry larger stocks, have more room and be in a position to better serve the public.

SAYS RED PEPPER HEAT STOPS PAIN IN FEW MINUTES

Rheumatism, lumbago, neuritis, backache, stiff neck, sore muscles, strains, sprains, aching joints. When you are suffering so you can hardly get around, just try Red Pepper Rub.

Nothing has such concentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers, and when heat penetrates right down into pain and congestion relief comes at once.

Just as soon as you apply Red Pepper Rub you feel the tingling heat. In three minutes the sore spot is warmed through and through and the torture is gone.

Rowles Red Pepper Rub, made from red peppers, costs little at any drug store. Get a jar at once. Be sure to get the genuine, with the name Rowles on every package.—Adv.

IRISH FLAG MAY CAUSE TROUBLE

By CHAS. McCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent

DUBLIN, (by Mail to United Press.)—Selection of a flag for the ship of state of the New Ireland is likely to cause a near war.

British treaty signatories have declared that the new Free State may select its own flag and will not be bound to follow the Dominions' example of using the Union Jack with a distinctive superscription.

It is taken for granted that the new Irish government will select the orange, white and green tricolors of the Irish Republic. But if they do, they will have a battle with the De Valera party, who maintain that the Republican flag is just what it implies—the flag of a republic.

The De Valerians want the Free State to leave them the flag and select something else—the old green flag with its golden harp, or, perhaps, they hint, the Union Jack. Neither is likely, certainly, whatever happens, the new flag will not be any sort of Union Jack.

The Free State party claim that majority rules in a democracy; that the majority of the Republican government are for the treaty and therefore are masters of the situation; that the people like the Republican flag, and that if they vote for the Free State, they will themselves have declared against the Republican party in its claim to represent the country.

If their argument holds good the Republican themselves will have to design a new banner.

HUGHES GAINING PLACE AMONG DIPLOMATS

Secretary of State Makes Enviable Record During Year in Office

WASHINGTON, March 3. — In the front rank of America's greatest Secretaries of State!

That is the way Washington is thinking of Charles Evans Hughes, chief of the international relations of the United States, whose first year in this important office is closing with an unprecedented list of achievements.

Perhaps it is too early yet to pronounce such a judgment on Huhes, but certain it is that he is well on the road of winning the honor of becoming America's greatest Secretary of State.

When Hughes came to the state department, he naturally did not have at his command the details and historical facts of the many problems in international affairs facing the government. But, he determined that he should have this information and not simply rely on the aid of his assistants and the experts in the department.

He immediately order to his office all the records from the state department archives in the cases of the various problems which he was being called on to decide. He spent long hours going thoroughly into these records.

Of course, the conference on limitation of armament and Far Eastern questions, just ended, had been Hughes greatest achievement; it will undoubtedly be the crowning work of his career. In the negotiations leading up to the conference and in the parley itself, Hughes is regarded as having displayed the high qualities statecraft. Among the great results wrought by this conference are the naval disarmament treaty, the four-power treaty dissolving the Anglo-Japanese alliance and aimed to secure the peace of the Pacific, the Shantung settlement, the Open Door treaty on China, and the other covenants.

The disruption of the Wilson foreign policy had resulted in an attitude by the allied powers which seemed to be aimed at "squeezing out" the United States from decisions in after-the-war questions, even those questions where vital American rights and interests were affected.

Hughes had been in the state department only a few weeks when he dispatched to the allied capitals a lengthy note dealing with the entire mandate question.

He protested against the attitude of the allied powers regarding mandated territories and insisted that the United States must be consulted on the disposition of these mandate rights; it declared that the United States could not recognize the Yap mandate as it had been awarded to Japan. This question has since been settled by a treaty.

Later Hughes, called on to act regarding this government's attitude on Russia, replied immediately, in a short, terse dispatch, reaffirming the Wilson Russian policy, and declaring commercial relations were useless so long as the present economic policies of the Soviet government were maintained.

The Mexican Enigma

"Should the United States recognize the Obregon government of Mexico?" was a big question which faced Hughes.

"The fundamental question," Hughes said, between the United States and Mexico was the protection of private property. The question was to have been settled in the new treaty by adequate and complete protection of American rights and interests, and this treaty was to effect recognition. The treaty was proposed to Obregon, but because of false reports at the time, which made a twisted issue of the question in Mexico, the Mexican chief executive has not yet accepted it.

The first real test of Hughes' personal statesmanship was during the reparations crisis of last spring. Germany was behind in her reparations payments; France was threatening to send her army into the Ruhr in retaliation. Germany appealed to the United States that President Harding arbitrate the reparations question.

Hughes replied to the German appeal, saying that if that country would submit a practicable means of meeting her reparations obligations, the United States would bring the proposal to the attention of the allies, but that this country would not do anything that was disagreeable to the allied powers.

Germany sent this proposal to Hughes. Then Hughes entered into important, private consultations with the allied powers. He told France that the United States wolud not look with favor on her sending her troops into the Ruhr, and is believed to have intimated an opinion that the German proposals had some worth in them.

Hughes achieved two big things —France did not carry out her desire to occupy the Huhr, and shortly afterwards the allies, prompted by the attitude of the United States, arrived at a reparations settlement in London with Germany, which was regarded as the most just and practicable that had been worked out up to that time.

Chinese Open Door

Hughes has been a consistent and strong champion of the traditional policy of the "open door." An American concern wanted to put up a great wireless station in China and the other powers said to China that she should not allow this because those powers had prior rights—in other words a monopoly, a violation of the "open door." Hughes sent a note to China, setting forth in strong terms that the "open door" policy should be upheld; and China let the American company go ahead with its contract for the wireless station.

SPENDING YANKS LIKED ON RIVIERA

More and More Ameri- Are Visiting Along Colorful Bay

NICE, March 3.—A squint down any page of a Riviera fashionable hotel's register is like picking the cast of characters for a dramatization of "Who's Who."

Only this year anybody would think he had stumbled into the American edition.

More and more Americans have been coming to spend all or part of their winters along the colorful bays of the Riviera. Although the fashionable winter population of Cannes, Nice, Monte Carlo, Beaulieu and Menton continues to be predominantly English, each season finds more and more Americans of all the sorts that travel—idly wealthy, pleasure seekers, lovers of color and the artistic, or just tired business men searching relaxation from worries, winter and winelessness in Europe's playground.

It is easy to pick out the Americans along the Prominade des Anglais, Nice's fashionable sea-skirt boulevard, along Cannes' even more exclusive La Croisette, or in the Casino gardens at Monte Carlo. They are dressed in the very latest Parisian frocks and English cut suits which they have probably brought from New York. They "sightsee" with a grim determination to leave nothing unseen. They go in with a vim for tennis, golf, horseracing, yachting, motoring and other sports, but eschew pigeon shooting. Not unfrequently, after they have been acclimated two weeks, they take into tow an English lord or two whose accent they cultivate.

The "season" on the Riviera is not as good as it was last year, largely due to exorbitant prices, and Americans are welcomed to help fill in the leaner year. Americans mean to the native, rooms with private bath, champagne suppers, no quibbling about "extras" on the bill, and a predilliction to be "stung." Among scores of other notable Americans, recent visitors include Mr. and Mrs. Perry Belmont, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel of New York, Mr. and Mrs. Hobart Chatfield-Taylor of Chicago. At Cannes, too, was George Harvey, American ambassador to England, with Mrs. Harvey and Ellis Loring Dresel, United States charge d' affaires of Berlin. Among notable and interesting hotel guests at Nice have been during the season Mr. and Mrs. George H. Dougherty of New York, Major General Henry Allen from Coblentz, Brigadier General William Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Joel Hillman, Atlantic City. At Monte Carlo have been Marc Klaw, Mrs. Ernest Thompson Seton, Mr. and Mrs. Winchell Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Ochs, and former Ambassador Leishman. Mr. and Mrs. Klaus Spreckels have a villa at Cape Ferrat. Mary Garden is expected in Monte Carlo in April.

WILL STOP EATING DOG SAY IGORROTES

MANILA, P. I., March 2.—The Igorrotes are going to quit eating dogs.

Igorrote chiefs, meeting recently with Governor General Leonard Wood, promised they would give up the food that made them famous, for the high-brow food of goats and sheep.

"The Philippines became too well known, and disreputably so, when they demonstrated their dog-eating proclivities at the fairs in the United States years ago," Governor Wood told the chieftains. "They gave the world they impression that they were the real type of Filipino."

The dog market at Baguio, in the mountain provinces of North Luzon island, is one of the show places of the Philippines. Every Sunday morning all the big and little Igorrotes gather from their hillside homes and barter in dogs. The leaner the dog, the better chow he makes and the higher price he brings. The eater buys the leanest dog, fattens him on rice for several days—then roasts him as he is.

"You folks are beyond this primitive, stone-age stuff," Governor Wood said. "Citizens of America think of the Igorrotes when they think of the Filipino. And we're not."

A woman never sees a baby without wanting to run to it, and a man never sees one without wanting to run from it.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Natural Color and Lustre at Once.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients a large bottle, at little cost, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.—Adv.

DANGER LIGHTS ON ROAD STOLEN

Auto Club Concerned Over Action of Set of Miscreants

Red lanterns used to mark dangerous spots on the highways where constructive work is under way or where piles of sand endanger lives have been stolen recently, according to a report just filed by the Automobile Club of Southern California.

Auto club officials are much concerned over the matter, as the absence of red warning lights at night in some of the more dangerous spots have narrowly missed causing some accidents. No attempt is made at an explanation of the matter, because club officers cannot determine what use the red lanterns are to any person.

According to officials of the state highway engineering offices, much trouble in the stealing and destruction of red warning lanterns has been encountered during the past seven years, but that it is much worse at the present time. Convictions for stealing the lanterns have been secured in some districts, and action is to be sought in others.

A plea will be issued by the automobile club to all county motorcycle officers to be particularly watchful in an endeavor to apprehend any miscreant stealing or destroying the warning signals. State highway engineers, according to a statement just issued, will co-operate to the fullest extent in prosecuting all cases where a person is found making away with red lanterns placed at dangerous spots on the highways.

A LECTURE ON CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

Christian Science, the Knowledge of Salvation
A Lecture

By

Charles I. Ohrenstein, C. S. B.

Member of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The lecturer was introduced by Arthur P. Case, First Reader.

Salvation is a subject that to a great extent has occupied religious thought. Indeed it may be said that salvation is the chief concern not only of the religionist, but of every individual and of every activity of mankind; for all want to be saved, and every right human activity is intended to save mankind from something.

In a certain sense, however, the religionist, more than others perhaps, has pondered the subject of salvation. He also may be said to be more concerned about it than others are. This is not strange. The Scriptures, of which he has been a student, dwell upon it. Indeed, according to prediction, he whom we call Master was to save his people, to bring salvation. For this reason his name was to be Jesus—which is identical with Joshua, meaning Saviour—and the Master not only repeatedly proclaimed salvation to be his mission, but his whole activity was intended to and did show the way in which salvation is to be attained.

The question, then, which very naturally occurs, is, What constitutes salvation? In other words, since the teachings of the Bible concern themselves with this question, and since Jesus certainly came to do that which is most important, most needful for all, what is it that needs to be saved, and from what is salvation needed?

Were this question asked of most of the religious denominations, the answer would undoubtedly be that, so far as religion is concerned, salvation pertains to the soul. In other words, it would be said that it is the soul which needs to be saved, and that it needs to be saved from eternal punishment, from hell, from destruction.

This is, of course, contradictory; for to be eternally punished, the soul would have to be, as it is commonly believed to be, immortal, eternal; and this, it must be evident, would mean that it could not be destroyed. Shakespeare saw this, as the following words which he put in Hamlet's mouth, plainly show:

> "And as for my soul, what can it (the ghost) do to that, being a thing immortal as itself?"

To discuss this subject intelligently, all of us, I am sure, will agree that the first thing needful is to ascertain just what we mean when we use the word soul.

BELIEFS ABOUT SOUL

Recognizing, as I do, that most of us are better able to approach a new idea upon any subject as we become less sure of the correctness of the view we may be entertaining about it, I shall, with your permission, attempt to tell in a brief way what the soul means to the average thinker in order that we may find it easier to consider the Christian Science view of it.

It will not, I trust, be unwarranted nor presumptuous to say that to most people the soul is something mysterious, situated somewhere inside the body into which it entered in an altogether unknown way, and out of which it is supposed to go just as mysteriously. It is also believed that some souls are good and others bad, and that they exercise an influence over people in accordance with their natures. Most people also may be said to believe the soul to be capable of suffering, of being disturbed, troubled, or of being happy, blissful; but notwithstanding all this they do not believe the soul to be in any way the cause of sickness or of health, conditions which by the average mortal are supposed to be altogether physical and to have material causes. It will not be unsafe to say also that it is quite generally believed that the soul is something which, upon eviction by death from the body, remains some kind of a shadowy self, which, according to its merits or demerits while still a tenant of the body, enters into a state of bliss or happiness called heaven, or into a state of torment called hell, where it may be forever lost or destroyed, and from which it must be saved.

To make us good here, then, because of the reward or punishment of our souls hereafter, may be said to constitute one of the beliefs or schemes of salvation which is generally accepted; and this, notwithstanding the way of salvation shown by him who is called the Wayshower. With such mysterious, unsatisfying beliefs about the chief purposes of religion, is it any wonder that religion is looked upon as impractical, and that it is not looked to for the solution of the problems of everyday existence? Is it any wonder that so much of the world has turned from religion and tried to blaze its own ways through the wilderness of material beliefs that make up human existence,—ways that have led and do lead all that walk in them to "dusty death"? I am sure all will agree that it is not strange that those, surfeited with this kind of theorizing should look askance at religious teaching,—yes, even at Christian Science, although this Science has for fifty years demonstrated a practical salvation through spiritual means; a salvation not of any conjectural, mistaken sense of soul, but a salvation by divine Soul, Spirit, God; a salvation taught in the Bible, and particularly by Jesus; a salvation which must be known in order that we may be Christians, in order that we may be saved, here, now, always, and in all ways.

MRS. EDDY'S DISCOVERY

No religion except the Christian-ity of Christ Jesus has, like Christian Science, been recruited by the demonstration or proof of its truth; the demonstration of a very present, every hour, every day salvation, based in every instance upon an understanding which alone is capable of such demonstration or proof, and this understanding is the understanding that Soul is but another term for Spirit, God.

It was her own healing which led Mrs. Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, to the consecrated study of the Scriptures that resulted in the discovery of the Principle of spiritual healing and salvation, so many instances of which are recorded in the Sacred Writings, and particularly in the works of Jesus. Like some others, both before and after her discovery, Mrs. Eddy, when at the point of death,—by the trust aroused in her by the reading of the Bible,—was healed. Unlike the others, however, Mrs. Eddy did not accept this healing to be miraculous—to be an infraction of law. She recognized that the only way it could have occurred at all was by the operation of the law of Spirit and in conformity with it. She recognized that all the deliverances, healings, restorations, recorded in the Bible, wrought by the prophets, by Jesus, and the apostles, were but illustrations and demonstrations of this ever-operative law of God. She did not rest selfishly content, therefore, but studied, searched the Holy Writ, until her search was rewarded by the discovery of the divine Principle and rules which brought about the Bible healings; healings which for ages had been looked upon and which are still looked upon by those uninstructed in Christian Science to be miraculous. She subjected her discovery, as she herself puts it in her great book, the Christian Science text book, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, (p. 147) "to the broadest practical test, and everywhere, when honestly applied, under circumstances where demonstration was humanly possible, this Science (her discovery) showed that Truth had lost none of its divine healing efficacy, even though centuries had passed away since Jesus practiced these rules on the hills of Judea and in the valleys of Galilee."

Jesus said, "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." To be made free surely means to be saved, or salvation in the fullest and the highest sense. Jesus' statement most certainly implied, therefore, that people who are not free from ills of every kind are not saved nor safe. It will not be straining the point to say that Jesus' statement also means that, since people are not free, they do not know the truth, and I am sure that the experience of all attests this. Mrs. Eddy, then, rightly may be classed to be a great discoverer,—the discoverer of the truth that Soul, God, does not need saving, but is He who alone is able to save, He who always does save, whether He is credited with doing so or not, a truth not recognized since the time that Christianity was understood and practiced by Jesus and his immediate followers.

FOUNDED ON THE BIBLE

It should be remembered that Christian Science is founded altogether on the Bible. Its teachings are simply the true teachings of that sacred book, particularly the teachings of Jesus, made plain and practical for us. In referring to this fact Mrs. Eddy said, "the Bible was my only text book" (Science and Health, p. 110). This fact is important, not only because it proves Christian Science to be true,—for all kinds of teachings may find something that seemingly corroborates them in that library of books called the Bible,—but because it proves the Bible true; and this, not by mere explanation, but by demonstration of the explanation, a demonstration which is also the salvation of the Bible for mankind; a demonstration which is saving the Bible from becoming discredited and relegated to the realm of myth, not only by materialism, but through the mysticism of scholastic theology; a demonstration which will ultimately save mankind through the teachings of the Bible.

Turning to the Bible, we find the word "soul" used with widely divergent meanings. According to the first chapter of Genesis we are told that "God" (Elohim)—whom Jesus, in speaking to the Samaritan woman, defined as Spirit, thus Soul—"created man in His own image, in the image of God created he them." This is but another way of saying what Mrs. Eddy has made so very plain, that man is the reflection, the thought or idea of God, of Spirit, Soul, or Mind, and is therefore spiritual, Soul-like, and not, as he is believed to be, material; that he is the expression of the divine existence or Life; of the intelligence and power of God, incapable of change, impairment, disease or decease—death; incapable of being lost or destroyed.

In the second chapter of Genesis, however, we find that "the Lord God (Yawah) formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul." It will probably not be necessary to remind you how that, according to this chapter, woman was formed from a rib taken out of Adam.

In this, the second narrative of creation, which is self evidently intended to account for material or apparent creation, man is an image or figure of dust with a mere breath of Yawah,—meaning "the existing one," or existence,—blown into his nostrils,—a thing so ephemeral, so evanescent, that nothing short of mere fancy could have described it. Yet the first mention of soul which occurs in the Scriptures is in this narrative, a narrative in which Yawah, existence, breathed into the nostrils of Adam, the dust man, and by this process made him "a living soul." This soul is designated in the original as "nephesh," literally meaning breath, and figuratively the bodily and mental senses, a thing, as has been said, so shortlived that the inspiration of it only means its very speedy expiration. It may be both interesting and significant, in this connection, to call attention to the fact that this word "nephesh," is still used by the Hebrews, and that it is used to signify what is worthless, not to be taken account of,—that which is nothing.

We further read in the Bible of a great variety of souls—souls that lie, that eat blood, thus murderous souls; souls that grieve, and those that rejoice; souls that are converted by the law of God; souls that long for and love God, good. We also read of a soul of the people—thus a collective soul, or what is now called "public conscience"; of a soul which God restores, as, "He restoreth my soul"; and so on until we come to that great, that inspired, Christian, and scientific statement to which reference has already been made, in which the great Master himself, gives us the only true idea of what soul really is,—"God is Spirit," thus God is Soul, Mind.

What has here been presented will probably suffice to indicate that it is not strange that human belief has been confused with regard to the soul; that widely different beliefs have been entertained about it, and that nearly all of them have included some scheme of damnation as well as of salvation for the soul. In her statement of Christian Science, which is nothing less than the Science of God or Soul, Mrs. Eddy has, in a single paragraph, both clarified and reconciled all Bible teaching upon this subject. "Human thought," she says, (p. 482 of Science and Health) "has adulterated the meaning of the word soul through the hypothesis that soul is both an evil and a good intelligence, resident in matter. The proper use of the word soul can always be gained by substituting the word God, where the deific meaning is required. In other cases, use the word sense, and you will have the scientific signification."

SOUL THE SAVIOUR

With Christian Science to guide us, it becomes clear that the wrong sense of life which is typified by Adam,—a sense of life breathed into matter, a thing that is inspired only to be expired,—must cease to be entertained for our sense of life, in order that the right, the spiritual sense may obtain in us. God, that is the one infinite Soul, constantly restores this spiritual sense of life, and for this reason it is immortal. Not only does Christian Science make this clear to us, but it makes it practical,—capable of being practiced and demonstrated. This practice is both healing and reformatory; for through it the right or spiritual sense of being uncovers for us every sinful sense or false belief about Soul to be a mistaken sense,—a sense accepted as true and able to confer pleasure, satisfaction, gain, existence, or as able to deprive us of them. For this reason it is a mistaken sense, because all right ideas are resident and obtainable only in Soul, Spirit, Mind, God, in whom they are abundant and indestructible.

If what has been said so far is plain, it must be evident that Soul never needs to be saved, but always saves, and that it does so through the right or spiritual sense which it constantly imparts and restores. In other words, it means that Soul, God, being Mind, operates and saves through His right sense or idea of being, and that there is no other way to be saved, no other means of salvation.

And what is this right sense or idea? It is what has already been indicated; the idea that man is not a detached, material bit of existence, an image of dust or clay with a soul or sense of life equally detached, a mere material inbreathing,—a nephesh, nothing, constituting man's corporeal consciousness. The right sense or idea which Christian Science reveals to us is that man is the constantly inspired image and likeness or expression of God, and thus the expression of the one true Soul, Spirit, Mind, "created in all holiness," which only means wholeness, completeness, that in which nothing is lacking,—health. Is not this the true salvation, the salvation through Christ, the God-anointed, God-approved man who must be and is the reflection or idea of God, and who, indeed, was before Abraham, as Jesus said. It must be perfectly plain that it is, and that it is a salvation that does not attempt to save a false, sinful sense by either forgiving it or by converting it, but that it saves all from each and every mistaken or sinful sense by destroying such sense; for every mistaken, and thus lying, destructive or murderous sense must be destroyed in order that no one may be victimized by it; in order that even the one entertaining it may not be victimized by it into indulging it. There is no other way to be forgiven or saved.

Every right sense is not only always safe, but it always insures the safety or salvation of every one who entertains it, and blesses every one who comes in contact with it. All this, I am sure, is plain. But there is an everyday and every hour salvation which religionist and non-religionist alike desire; a salvation from the ills to which flesh is believed to be heir,—the fears, troubles, strifes, wars, wants, woes, sicknesses, disasters, deaths, to which mankind has been subject; from which mankind has suffered. It is for freedom or salvation from such ills as these ills are that mankind has hoped against hope; that mankind has struggled against almost ceaselessly, but in vain and without expectancy of success. Can Soul save from these things, and how?

SPIRIT AND MATTER

Here it may be asked, Why is the material sense mistaken, false, sinful, and why does it or should it, because of sowing to the flesh, reap corruption? Is not that which is material all that is tangible to us, are not we to care for our bodies and the bodies of those near and dear to us, provide for them, cherish them, love them?

The answer to all such questions is a very simple one. In the first place, Christian Science does not deny that what is called matter is all that we see with our eyes, all that we hear with our ears, all that we smell, taste, and all that we feel with the touch. But Christian Science does deny that what is thus sensed is essentially what it is sensed to be,—matter; that it is caused or produced in the way in which it is believed to be caused or produced; that it is subject to and governed by such laws as it is believed to be governed by, and that it is best cared for, treated, and conserved, in the ways which have been evolved for doing so because of a mistaken sense of it.

Nor are the teachings of Christian Science with regard to matter now opposed by natural scientists as they formerly were. Many of the natural scientists no longer teach that what is called matter really is or can be substantial. They recognize that to so teach means one of three things, all three of which are impossible to rational thinking. These three things are,—(1,) that matter exists without having been created—is self existent; (2,) that, since nothing but matter could constitute or cause matter, it is self-created; and (3,) that matter is created by some external, immaterial agency, and out of something that originally was not matter. As has been said, none of these theories can in any possible way be rationally thought or accepted.

The unreality of matter, taught by Christian Science, used to be a favorite point of attack and ridicule upon this Science. Since some of the most advanced natural scientists have commenced to express similar views, however, the attacks upon this ground are made now only by those who are as yet unacquainted with the more recent scientific conclusions upon this subject, and occasionally by the clergy, who, as students of, and believers in the Scriptures, should rejoice to see the teachings of the Bible vindicated. For in the Scriptures it is plainly stated that "In the beginning God"—the God whom Jesus defined as Spirit or Soul—"created the heaven and the earth." And if this means anything, it certainly means that Spirit must have created them out of itself, and that anything thus created cannot be material. But the narrative leaves no doubt as to this fundamental and important fact; for in the very next verse, the second verse of the same chapter, it is stated, "And the earth"—meaning the apparent or matter earth—"was without form," that is, without entity, "and void"—without existence. Thus, too, throughout the whole chapter of the first and true narrative of creation, a creation summed up as complete, it is plainly stated that by the Word of God—the utterance or expression of Spirit—were all things created that are in the heavens and in the earth; and this must certainly mean that only the spiritual is the real. But in teaching the unreality of matter, Christian Science does not teach that earth, air, sea, and the things that are therein, flowers, trees, birds, and so on, do not exist; that you and I do not exist. Like the Bible, Christian Science teaches that "the worlds were framed by the Word of God, so that things which are seen were not made of things which do appear," And simply because "we now see," as Paul puts it, "through a glass darkly," students and believers of the Scriptures should not continue to deny the truth of Mrs. Eddy's teachings and to assert as true what is contrary to both revelation and reason.

IMPORTANT QUESTIONS

But what has this to do with saving us from the ills which constantly confront and assail us, with preventing them and curing them? How can it be applied to improve our condition, mental, moral, physical? How can it make us more efficient and successful in meeting our human needs? For whether we believe ourselves to be spiritual or material, it is these needs that constantly confront us; it is from the every-day ills that we all want to be saved.

It is just these questions that the prophets and Jesus came to answer and did answer by their works. It is just these questions that Christian Science came to answer and has been answering by its practical results for half a century. Like the prophets, like Jesus and his immediate followers, Christian Science has done this on the basis which has been presented,—the basis of the spiritual or true sense of being; the sense that Spirit, Mind, is, all-in-all, the only cause or creator; that Mind's creation, including man, Mind's reflection, is therefore spiritual, mental, and consists of right ideas and their perfect manifestation. This truth uncovers as illusions the myriad misconceptions of the physical senses to which everything is matter, caused by matter, limited by matter, and ultimately destroyed by it.

APPLICATION

There are those who, misunderstanding Christian Science, assail it and from time to time undertake to "expose" its methods, calling them suggestion, hypnotism, and so on, just as those who misunderstood Jesus and his works took it upon themselves to expose him, saying that he did his works "through Beelzebub," meaning the devil, whom Jesus defined as a falsity and thus as a false sense of being, suggestion, hypnotism. But the contemporaries of Jesus forgot that he constantly revealed the real nature of his own works through his own teachings of the truth, and that his illucidation of them was so convincing, so beneficient, that "the common people heard him gladly," and were healed. In the same way the detractors of Christian Science also forget that Christian Science has for fifty years been turning the clear light of day upon its own teachings; that it has done so and is doing so at its every church service, in all its literature, and through its every lecture; that this presentation, like that of Jesus, is attended by and results in great good, in many healings and reformations, and that, consequently, the people, just the people, "the common people," again hear it gladly. Only the uncommon people find Christian Science, as they did the teachings of Jesus, "an hard saying," and speak of its followers as they spoke of him, when they said to him, "Now we know that thou hast a devil."

That Christian Science and its methods,—the application of the right, the spiritual idea of being which has here been somewhat explained,—may also be "exposed" here as plainly as possible, may I not, with your permission, illustrate the working of the spiritual or right idea of being in Christian Science, that is, the application of it, and may I not do so by citing some actual cases of healing? In doing this, it is not my purpose to urge you to believe the particular cases which I shall present. Indeed, you are perfectly free to believe or disbelieve them. My sole desire is to show the effect which is bound to result from the correction of the wrong sense which people have about themselves, about others, and about existence, and to do this so simply that all may be able to apply what is said to their own needs and so to prove it in their own experience, thus precluding the necessity of believing anything whatever upon the subject, because of the definite knowledge that will come to them through their demonstration of it.

SIMPLE ILLUSTRATIONS

A case in point is that of a little boy who was brought by his mother for treatment. He was about ten years old, very delicate, and what is called nervous. His face twitched constantly, so that, according to his mother, he at times said, "Mother, my face is so tired it hurts." He had been thus from infancy. The belief that it was a case of weak nerves inherited from his mother was entertained by all concerned. Everything had been done in a medical way to cure him, but he constantly grew worse. The mother, who knew nothing about Christian Science, but had heard of it, thus described the case. The practitioner asked the little fellow if he went to Sunday school. He said he did. The practitioner then asked him if he had learned there that God made man, and that He made man "after His (God's) image and likeness." The little boy said that he had. He was then asked whether he knew what was meant by "image and likeness," and he answered that he did not. The practitioner lifted him up so that he could see his reflection in a mirror which was in the room, and told him that what he saw there was his image and likeness, and asked him whether it ever did anything that he did not do, or whether it ever obeyed anything but him. He answered that it couldn't. The little boy was then silently treated, which means that the truth of man's God-likeness was prayerfully known about him, the mother paid for the treatment and they went away. As they went, the little boy's face twitched just as it had when he came, and, if any one of you had seen him, you would probably have felt that nothing had been done. The practitioner judged, however, "not according to the appearance," but in accordance with the spiritual or true sense of being, and also with the understanding that God's "word does not return to Him void, but accomplishes that whereunto it is sent."

After about a week, a letter came from the mother of the little boy saying that there was no change in his physical condition, but that he was certainly a better boy. Another letter to about the same effect came about a week later, and, although the boy never had more than the one treatment, a letter came in about two weeks more saying that the trouble for which he had been treated had entirely disappeared. This boy is now grown, is a big and strong man, and his face is in perfect condition.

GOD'S HEALING WORD

Here the critic or the skeptic may say that the healing of functional disease, such as that of the boy, is conceded as possible through Christian Science, but that the healing of organic or malignant diseases cannot be conceded to it.

In the Old Testament, we are told, "He"—meaning God—"sent his word and healed them." In speaking of the word of God, Jesus said, "Thy word is truth," and of the truth, as already quoted, he said, "the truth shall make you free." No limitation of any kind is placed upon the power of God's word or truth to heal or make free, either by the Old Testament writer or by Jesus, and both the Old and New Testament records show that God's word or truth, when rightly applied, accomplished its divine purpose,—healed all manner of diseases. Not only does Christian Science prove that it is the Word or Truth of God of which the foregoing was predicated, but it does this in a way that leaves no room for doubt upon this question by frequently accomplishing the healing and emancipation without any personal instrumentality or intermediary. A case of this kind, of which I would like to tell you, is that of a man who attended a Wednesday evening meeting of the church in my home city. His trouble was a disease of the mouth and lower lip, which had progressed so far as to leave no question as to its nature. Very much impressed with the testimonies given at the meeting, he enquired of an usher for some one who could tell him something more about Christian Science, and was referred to a practitioner. Without any preliminaries he said, "You can see what is the matter with me; but this is not all. I have been and am an immoral man, and a hard drinker. I am a traveling man, only a day or two in a place, and have never been religiously inclined. Can I be cured, and what must I do to be cured?"

"From what you say," replied the practitioner, "I take it that you know nothing of Christian Science; so the first thing which I should advise you to do would be to procure a copy of Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, by Mrs. Eddy, which you have heard mentioned in the testimonies here tonight, and read it. In this way, you will not only learn what Christian Science teaches and be able to decide whether you want to turn to it for your healing, but since it is the Word or Truth of God which, as you have heard in some of the testimonies, does the healing, there is no reason why you should not be healed by it without treatment from a practitioner. At any rate, you will be able to decide whether you want Christian Science, and, if you then desire treatment, you will be able to find and consult a practitioner in almost any town you visit." Without a word he turned to the table where the literature was sold, and bought a copy of the book. He did not visit the church again until quite a number of months afterwards, when, at another Wednesday evening meeting he got up, and, recalling his previous visit to the church, his trouble, his inquiry about Christian Science, and the directions given him, he told, with tears of gratitude streaming down his face, that he was healed of the malignant disease, of the drink habit and other bad habits, through the reading of the Christian Science text book, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, by Mary Baker Eddy, and that he had found it to be the Word or Truth of God with us.

The cases cited, will, I am sure, sufficiently illustrate the great truth that it is the understanding of Soul or Mind, God, that is the true Saviour from all the ills to which flesh, or human belief, has claimed to be heir. Such cures most certainly fulfill the mission of the Christ. But Christian Science, the Science of Soul or Mind, to the degree that it is understood and practiced, saves from all bondage, from all limitations, and proves that it is indeed the truth that makes free.

ABUNDANCE

To the human thought, altogether dependent upon the five physical senses for its information, everything is of necessity limited. This applies to things subjective as well as objective. Intelligence, strength, ability, capacity, and the success dependent upon them; happiness, health, life, love,—the things most longed for by mankind,—all of these, to the human sense, are subject to limitations—limitations which are the source of all uncertainty, weakness, disability, incapacity, misery, poverty, failure, sickness, death.

Limitation, to the human sense, is the one besetting sin, the one inevitable evil. According to this sense, nothing can escape limitation nor rise above it. Yet, it is against this supposedly inevitable evil that mankind has always struggled and continues to struggle. Each successive individual, generation, age, civilization, has pushed against the doom of this niggard, limitation, only to be apparently swallowed up by it. The battle has been long. Daily, hourly, has this Goliath vaunted himself, threatened all mankind, until he stands acknowledged by the many as unconquerable, invulnerable; and this, notwithstanding the great fact that, like his prototype, the Philistine of old, he has been slain,—slain also as was his prototype, by a Shepherd of Israel.

This Shepherd of Israel is Christ Jesus, the wayshower, who shows us the way because each and every one of us is confronted by the same life problems that confronted him. "He was tempted in all parts like as unto sinful flesh, but without sin,"—without mistaking the temptation for that which is able to truly satisfy. The human sense made the same demands upon him as it does upon us, he had the same needs that we have, but he met them with right ideas, with the true Christ sense of the one Mind or Soul, the only sense that can truly meet all human needs.

"Blessed are the poor in spirit," that is, blessed are those who are not high-minded nor self-assertive, but not necessarily those who lack mere things. The teachings of Jesus and of Christian Science not only emphasize the Bible promises and teachings, but they illucidate them and make them practical. They show that the "poor in spirit" may not only be "poor and content" but "rich and rich enough" without transgression of any kind. To be under a sense of limitation or of lack, or to be embittered in any way, is a sure indication that one is not yet sufficiently poor in spirit; a sure indication of not letting "that mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus"; of not being obedient to the Christ Spirit, and so of not being Israel; and it should be remembered that God's promises are to Israel—to the God-governed.

Perhaps no saying of Jesus is more familiar nor quoted more frequently that one that deals directly with the subject under consideration. This saying is, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness," meaning, seek ye first to be governed by God's commandments, "and all these things," the things which are needed, "shall be added unto you." This should be particularly significant to all of us who are Christian Scientists; for in the Church Manual, as in the Christian Science text book, Mrs. Eddy left for our guidance and our government only the rules with which God inspired her.

No Israelite, no Christian, no one who is "poor in spirit," obedient to God's commands, and thus the reflection of God, can lack anything. Malice, envy, rivalry, dishonesty, and their opposition, persecution, vilification, cannot rob him of divine Mind's guidance, protection, providence; cannot stop his demonstration of abundant good which is his by right of his obedience to God, Spirit, Soul,—omnipotence; by his right as Israel, "not after the flesh, but after the spirit"; by his right as a follower of Christ, and, therefore, a Christian Scientist.

Jesus' teachings were always those of the Bible. He made plain those teachings, and demonstrated them. His uords, "aflame with divine love" (Science and Health, p. 367), lifted, enlightened, and kindled the thought of his hearers so that their hearts burned within them to follow his example; and their words and works, in turn, perpetuated this right desire. But the love of ease, "the lust of the eyes and the pride of life," the desire for mere loaves, not for the obedience which worked the miracle of multiplying them, gave to the world mere words instead of works, the mere embers and ashes of the heavenly fire kindled by the Master, embers and ashes which remained such until again one poor enough in spirit fanned them into flame with her devotion, was warmed back to life by them, a life abundant with all good for herself and all mankind.

Just as Jesus had to make plain the teachings of the Scriptures to the Jews, so the teachings of those Scriptures and of Jesus had to be made plain to us. Mrs. Eddy did this. Just as he brought no new doctrine, so did she bring no new doctrine. Just as the Scriptures and Jesus taught that the abundance of all that is good is the result of obedience to the commandments of the one Spirit, Soul, God,—the result of that humility, that meekness, which is "poor in spirit," not high-minded, so has Mrs. Eddy taught that the abundance of good is for all who are willing to leave all mistaken beliefs and follow Christ, God's truth, which blesses and benefits all. For her devotion to the task of making Christian Science, the knowledge of salvation, clear to all mankind, Christian Scientists love, honor and revere their Leader, Mary Baker Eddy, and they gratefully greet the signs which indicate that the world is beginning to do likewise.

Council Doings

Light for West Salem

The request of the residents on West Salem street for a light at a certain dangerous point will be granted very soon. Mr. Diederich, manager of the public service department of the city, stated at the meeting of the council last night that he has taken this up with the telephone company, which will put up poles to provide for the installation of this light.

Business Districts

At the request of the people of Grand View district, a business section will be established at certain points on Fourth and Sixth streets in tract No. 4280, and also at a point in tract No. 4764, both of which sections are in Grand View territory.

Plumbers Must Pay License

The plumbing concerns of Glendale hereafter must pay a license of $75 per year and must give a bond amounting to $500, according to an ordinance adopted by the city council last night.

Councilman Lapham Back

After an absence of several weeks, during which time he was confined to his home with influenza, Councilman Lapham was again on the job last night. He still carries the same old smile which seemed to brighten up things around the council table.

Mrs. W. F. Wood to Subdivide

Mrs. W. F. Wood appeared before the council to ask permission to run a street through her property, which lies east of Verdugo road and between Wilson and Broadway, her idea being to subdivide the land. As an insufficient map was presented last night she was asked to have her engineer submit an entirely new map at the next meeting.

Creamery Granted Permit

H. Kuble, Henry Blackburn and Frank Spichtig, members of the Calla Lily Creamery company, were granted permits to sell milk in the city of Glendale.

Dryden to Be Improved

A petition was received from property owners along Dryden street from Pacific to Kenilworth asking that the thoroughfare be improved. The city attorney and city engineer were instructed to draft the necessary legal proceedings to start this work.

Ferry Gets Contract

Peter L. Ferry was awarded the contract for the improvement of a portion of Isabel street, the work to start as soon as possible and to be rushed to completion.

Improvement for California

The city engineer and city attorney were instructed to sttrt legal proceedings for the ordering of improvement work on East California avenue, between Glendale avenue and Verdugo road.

Swimming Pool Next

The city engineering department has almost finished the preliminary work on the new swimming pool for Glendale, and it is expected that within a week everything will be ready for the calling of bids for this work. It is expected that these bids will be called for at next Thursday evening's meeting of the council.

Figures Demanded of P. E.

At last night's meeting the council decided to "jack up" the Pacific Electric company with regard to the cost of lowering the company's tracks on Brand boulevard. This estimate was to have been in the hands of the council at a certain date, which has already expired. The city manager was instructed to take this matter up with the Pacific Electric and to demand that the company give the matter its immediate attention. The city officials are in earnest about this matter and the intend to get action on the part of the company.

VAUDEVILLE FOR LEGION IN TUJUNGA

Excellent Program Is Prepared for Friday and Saturday Nights

Those who have been privileged to see the rehearsals that have been going on every night, for the American Legion vaudeville, declare the show to be one of the best ever produced in Tujunga. The first performance will be given tonight at 8 o'clock at Bolton Hall, and will be repeated tomorrow night. Admission is 50 and 25 cents.

Among the residents of Tujunga are some who have exceptional dramatic and musical abbility, and it is from these that the casts for the plays and the other numbers have been drawn. "Three Rogues and a Rascal" is a very clever skit with four characters. Those cast in this play are Robert Walker, the judge; Joseph Forster, the lawyer; Beecher Maxwell, the manufacturer, and Guy Insley, the negro.

"Evidence" is a dramatic sketch with Arthur Scribner in the role of the judge; Miss Katherine Crews, the wife, and Mrs. W. T. Johnson, the girl.

Parts in "The Spinsters' Convention" are taken by ladies of the auxiliary and their friends. This play is said to be the best of the long run of "Old Spinster" plays.

"The Pup-tent" is the name given the stunt to be put on by members of the post, and it is said to be a scream. Other numbers on the program are a black-face act, Mr. Lambert; Scotch act, Ivan Craig; musical numbers by the Percey brothers; specialty dance, Margaret Reynolds, and a dramatic reading by Mrs. Bert Begue.

Another business building soon to rise on Sunset boulevard is that to be put up by S. Lipson, just south of the one he is now completing between Monte Vista and El Centro. A dry goods and furnishings store is to be opened in the new building by Mr. Lipson, B. Godin will occupy a part of the building now being completed with a cleaning and dyeing establishment, and Mrs. W. D. Thatcher and her sister, Mrs. Collins, are to open a bakery in the other store.

A meeting of the T. N. T. club was held in the church basement on Tuesday evening. Current business was transacted, followed by high jinks.

Ernest Wieman and Mrs. Wieman are in Tujunga for a visit with his mother, Mrs. W. H. Wieman. Mr. Wieman has for some time been in Mexico as general field superintendent for the Union Oil company, but has lately been transferred to Southern California.

G. W. Sleeper of Los Angeles is in Tujunga for a short time to recover from an attack of influenza.

VAUDEVILE REVUE AT T. D. L. TODAY

By far the biggest vaudeville road show yet presented in Glendale comes to the T. D. and L. theatre today. Fully twenty people comprise the bill of variety and comedy revue.

Tommy La Rose's Musical Comedy revue (7 people) offer an extremely clever act including specialty numbers of singing and dancing. The Clement Royal Hawaiian Players are a troup of five Hawaiians who play their native instruments as only the genuine Hawaiian can. Appy Trio present a novel singing and musical act that is considered out of the ordinary.

Five acts in all comprise the bill of vaudeville and on the screen the T. D. L. theatre present the Paramount picture, "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford" from the famous series of Cosmopolitan stories of the same title by Randloph Chester. A big two-hour show. See it!

GIRL BADLY SCALDED

Little Bernice Smith, ten years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bine Smith, who was quite badly scalded last Saturday when boiling water splashed onto her legs from a teakettle she let fall, was well enough to return to her school work Tuesday, after having had professional care. It was the first time since her birth that she has received the visits of a physician, which speaks well for the health of the little girl.

The Barton Bedtime Stories

THE SEAL HAS A FIT OF GIGGLES

By JOHN BARTON

(Copyright, 1921, by Associated Newspapers)

This time when Dr. Muskrat paused in his story about the ancestors of his Woodsfolk friends Chips and Ripple Beaver and the Widow Squirrel—not to speak of his own great-grandparents and the seals and the whale who kept them company through the Big Flood—it wasn't to make them ask questions. He'd got a cramp in his paw from sitting still so long and his tail was as dry as his tongue. So he took a plunge in Chips's Pond and made a fresh start.

"The raven hadn't been a week on their oak-tree raft before the big he-seal followed him home. He came racing along the waves, leaping clear into the air at every paddle-stroke, and then plunging under again, as if he were galloping. And he was laughing. He flounced up onto their log, shaking all over, and began to bark the news at them.

"'She's a-coming! She's a-coming! That logy old Ark. And she don't know where nor why. Oough, but that Fluke-slasher's a caution! Daytimes he'll lie way out in the blue sea, looking as much like an island as he can—so Mister Noah'll steer toward him. He, he!' He broke off in a roar of laughter that set the water flying off his wet flappers in a shower. 'Mister Noah sent out a dove to have a look at him and—you know how he can squirt—well, that whale sent her back looking as if she'd been through a thunderstorm——'

"'Kaw-haw!' burst out the raven. He hated that dove, if you remember. He called her a blandantherin' thing—which isn't polite.

"'Oo-wow!' whooped the seal. 'Then at night what do you s'pose that whale does? He sneaks up along side and shunts the old scow with his nose, just where he wants her to be. Sometimes he gives her an awful jolt; then half theh folks begin to roar and howl and whinny and snort and squeal. "She's sinking! She's sinking!" and the rest say "She's aground!" And Noah and Shem argufy which it is and whether they'd ought to heave the anchor out. Then Ham leads out the elephant and starts him in to moving all the truck they've got piled on top of it, and the elephant balks cause he's scared to death of mice—you won't believe it; but he most truthfully is and its 'all full of mouse nests. And, of course, Mister Noah flies into a tantrum about their daring to nest against his orders, and he sets the dog on them. (Here the Red Dog wagged a knowing ear, 'cause that's when dogs first took to mouse hunting.) And by that time they find they're afloat again.

He Flounced Up Onto Their Log, Shaking All Over, and Began to Bark the News at Them.

"'Just you wait till she gets here.'"

A NOVEL PLAN FOR KEEPING AWAY PROTECTED PESTS

Farmers sometimes resort to odd devices when game laws protect birds and animals that make raids on their crops. In the Sacramento valley during rice harvest, before the duck season is "open," the practice of using airplanes to frighten the ducks away from rice has become quite common. Some farmers have used bombs and others have disregarded the law. But the most curious method is employed by a strawberry grower on Vancouver Island, near Victoria. His pest is the Chinese pheasants, which were introduced into the Northwest many years ago. They raid his strawberries but the law does not permit him to shoot them. Therefore the farmer soaks wheat in whisky. The birds eat the wheat and get drunk. Then he catches them. The story does not say what becomes of the birds after they get caught—nor where he gets the whisky.

ROTARIANS PLAN TO ATTEND S. F. CONVENTION

Banquet Next Thursday Instead of Regular Weekly Meeting

Rotary club members came out in force to the luncheon held in the Chamber of Commerce banquet hall Thursday noon, and sang their rotary songs as usual, with Paul Carson at the piano.

Mr. Arbury finished his talk on community service and Elliott Wyman announced some interesting things in connection with the twenty-third district conference of Rotary clubs to be held in San Francisco to which Secretary J. Herbert Smith was elected delegate and Vice-President Roy L. Kent, alternate. Several members signified their intention to attend.

Announcement was also made that in place of the mid-day luncheon next Thursday a banquet will be held at the same place at 6:30 that night to celebrate the presentation to the club of its charter by Elliott Wyman. It will be an open meeting to which members will be permitted to invite as many of their friends as they like. Carl Rosenburg will give his famous "Block Talk," there will be songs by the Ellis club, and other interesting features.

An elaborately printed invitation, measuring 10 by 14 inches, embellished with gold seals, addressed to the club and soliciting its attendance at the district conference at San Francisco March 15-18, was exhibited and ordered framed and hung upon the walls of the club room.

Copies of the new club bulletin called "Glendale Rotoservice" were distributed and read with great interest.

AVE ATQUE VALE

Come ye not angry to this place,
Or if thou wert before,
Make clean thy heart, till every trace
Be left outside the door;
For here thy welcome shall be kind,
With peace that thou mayst share,
Thou shalt not seek again to find
Thy bitter burden there.

Speak ye not harshly, here, I pray,
Be with no rancor stirred;
If there be need, let Mercy say
The reprehending word.
The fire is warm, the walls are strong,
Here are but friends alone,
No soul is here to do thee wrong
Unless it be thine own.

Dream ye not evil here, but let
Thy high soul have its will,
Till thou forgivest every debt
And who has done thee ill.
Here art thou of thy safety sure,
As friend with friend may be,
And all thy treasures are secure
From enemy but thee.

A blessing on thee, now we part,
May love and mercy bring;
And as thou goest, in thy heart
Be no unkindly thing.
We are thy friends, with love to charm
Away what foes may be,
And in the world to do thee harm
Is not a soul but thee!

This is the age of substitutes, but none has been discovered for honesty.

Advice is like castor oil—it is one thing to prescribe it, and another to take it.

WOMEN FALL INTO STORE BASEMENT

Who says life in Glendale is void of thrills? There are two women and three men who will "tell the world" that they received the thrill of their lives Wednesday afternoon when the sidewalk in front of the new Jensen building, under construction, caved in and dropped the women down into the basement of the store on top of three workmen.

According to witnesses the two women were passing in front of the building when the sidewalk suddenly caved in. The women and considerable dirt went hurtling down on top of the workmen. The women were apparently uninjured and were able to go to their homes. Their names were not learned. It was necessary to dig the workmen from the dirt that covered them when the walk caved in.

PLUMBING BOARD MAY BE CREATED

An ordinance was presented at the meeting of the council last night which will establish a board of examiners consisting of three men, whose work it will be to examine the plumbers who "operate" in this city. This board will consist of one doctor, one journeyman plumber and one master plumber, all of whim will serve without pay. This board is being established in order that when the people of Glendale employ a plumber they will get a man who is capable of doing expert work.

BACK FROM CONVENTION

Robert T. Lyan, newspaper man of 511 North Jackson street, who edits the livestock department of a Los Angeles daily, has returned from the convention of Berkshire breeders and producers, which was held in Riverside. He states that representatives were present from all parts of the United States, and it was a most interesting gathering. During the time he was absent his wife and daughter were guests of Dr. and Mrs. O. J. Furst of Los Angeles.

ENJOY SWIMMING

The Glendale branch of the "Fiery Dragons" motored to Bimini hot springs Wednesday night and enjoyed an evening of swimming.
